

Carnifex Ferry Battlefield State Park

NESTLED ON THE RIM of the Gauley River Canyon near Summersville, West Virginia, Carnifex Ferry Battlefield State Park is an important Civil War battle site. On September 10, 1861, Union troops led by Brigadier General William S. Rosecrans engaged the Confederates and forced them to evacuate an entrenched position on the Henry Patterson farm that overlooked Carnifex Ferry. The Confederate commander, Brigadier General John B. Floyd retreated across the ferry to the south side of the Gauley River and on eastward to Meadow Bluff near Lewisburg. This Civil War battle represented the failure of a Confederate drive to regain control of the Kanawha Valley. As a result, the movement for West Virginia statehood proceeded without serious threat from the Confederates.

TRAIL DESCRIPTIONS

Old Ferry Road

.3 miles

A short section of this old road is on state park property and begins near shelter #3. It was the road used by Confederate General Floyd during his retreat off the mountain to Carnifex Ferry, approximately 1.2 miles in distance. The park section of the old road is moderate in difficulty.

Patterson Trail

2 miles

This trail forms a loop around the park and can be accessed from several locations. Generally easy to moderate in difficulty, the trail features three overlooks of the Gauley River.

Pierson Hollow Trail

.6 miles

This trail branches off the Patterson Trail across the road from the Patterson House Museum. The trail passes through a stand of mature trees before ending. The trail is narrow but generally easy to moderate in difficulty.

NOTE: All trail distances given are one way and the map is not drawn to scale. Use of bicycles, horses or vehicles is not permitted on park trails.
